“ Didi was my Mother's sister, an aunt that lived in magical America when I was a child. I didn't meet her till I was thirteen years old but immediately connected with her. She came to visit Iceland several times, and I visited her and Ken in North Tonawanda. Iceland was always "home" for her or "heima" as she would say. Didi was kind, easy to get along with, someone who had the courage to leave her homeland in 1945 and step into a "new world" and start a new life with the love of her life. With Didi's passing only one of her siblings, the youngest one Stina, is still alive out of a group of five sisters and one brother. My aunts were the "wise women" in my world when I was growing up, and I miss them. My condolences to my cousins and their families in the States. Rest in Peace Didi. Love and Light Gudrun Bergmann
