“ Becky and I shared a love of books and often exchanged a good mystery or memoir. When we worked together, we would indulge in "snack time." Mine varied, but hers was always the same, barbecue chips.

While living in Florida, my husband Bob died suddenly. I had left Buffalo more than three years before and Becky and I did not stay in touch. One of the first cards I received was from Becky. The note inside was lovely and touching. I still have that note and will always treasure it.

When I returned to Buffalo in 2014, Becky welcomed me back to The Barn with open arms, because that's who she was. It would be my privilege to make a donation to St. Jude in her memory.

“ A dear friend with a heart of gold. Always there when we needed her. When my wife died she was the first person to come over to my house with arms full of food but most importantly to offer me support in my time of grief. She’s gone but will never be forgotten. Ange Forgione
